#1: Describe the Poem

Instructions: Read the following poem. Then, pick out three key words and write them in distinct boxes. Lastly, choose the tone/mood that best encompasses the poem.

_the poem!_
_we would likely include the title and poet to give credit, but I forgot here._

Input the key words:

_we would write these fields such that only letters and '—' were allowed. this would be a minor way of quality control_

Choose a mood/tone:

[ ♥ Select One ]

_this would be a dropdown of moods/tones, to minimize the risk of trashy answers._
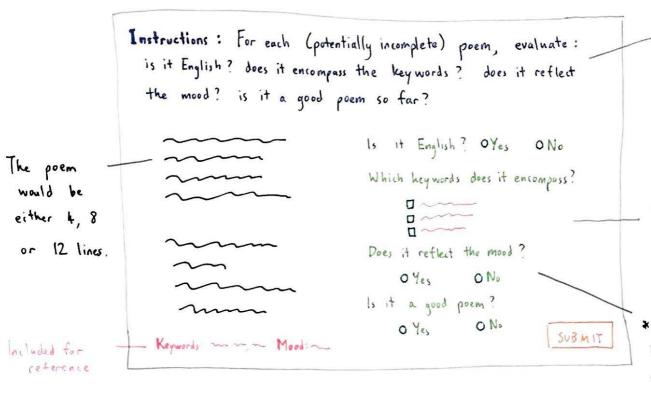

[SUBMIT]

#2: Be the Poet!

Instructions: You will be writing the (1st/2nd/3rd) stanza of a 3-stanza poem, if you accept this HIT. Keep in mind and focus on the keywords and mood of the poem, and be aware of any stanza that may already have been written. Have fun and be creative!

Insn:

Finish the poem w/ 4 lines:

[SUBMIT]

_The keywords and mood will be the same across all iterations of the poem._

_*EDIT: We will provide the first line of the original poem for iteration 1 HITs, to provide inspiration._

_We will have 4 separate inputs for the 4 lines to enforce that they must write 4 lines._

#3 : Filter the Poems

We would run this task after each iteration to filter out trash results.

Instructions : For each (potentially incomplete) poem, evaluate : is it English? does it encompass the keywords? does it reflect the mood? is it a good poem so far?

The poem would be either 4, 8 or 12 lines.

Is it English? ○ Yes   ○ No

Which keywords does it encompass?

☐ ~~~~
☐ ~~~~
☐ ~~~~

Does it reflect the mood?

○ Yes         ○ No

Is it a good poem?

○ Yes         ○ No

SUBMIT

Filter out the bad poems with the first 3 evaluations. The last is just out of curiosity.

Included for reference

— Keywords ~~ , ~ Mood: ~

* Edit: for mood, we'd instead ask the workers what they think the mood was from a dropdown.

#4 : Which Poem Do You Prefer?

Instructions : Read both poems and choose which is better. You must give a reason why.

We would put two poems side by side. One would be the original without the title or author, the other would be crowdsourced!

POEM I

POEM II

Which is better?   ○ POEM I   ○ POEM II

Why? [                              ]   SUBMIT

We would randomly swap the locations in each HIT, ofc

We ask why so we can tell if people actually read the poem. I didn't have room anymore but we would also ask if they recognize either poem, because they could have a bias if they wrote the poem or know the poet.
